

The Halton Resource Connection

Partners in Professional Excellence

Creating Vibrant Places for Living and Learning

presented by Lorrie Baird & Anne Marie Coughlin

This two-day learning institute will provide an opportunity for early learning professionals in different roles to consider ways to bring the foundations of belonging, engagement, well-being and expression to life in meaningful and relevant ways.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 2017

On our first day, we will explore leadership from within. We will discover more about who we are as leaders, what drives our practice and how an increased self-awareness influences our relationships and our view of others. We will reflect on the kinds of questions, mindsets, and principles of leadership that supports our own personal growth and in turn, the growth of others.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 2017

On day two we will delve into the questions, "Who is the child?" and "Who am I with the child?" When we view children from a place of competence it influences and impacts our interactions, our environments and how we bring visibility to these competencies. We will explore our evolving roles as educators in support of Ontario's Pedagogy for the early years.

THRC would like to offer you a way to reflect on and explore the concepts shared at this institute through a community of practice!

Join us, as we continue on our learning journey!

A community of practice is;

- a group of people who interact together and commit to meet regularly
- may share the same concern or passion
- may want to create something, or figure out how to do something better
- emergent in nature; the dialogue and actions are led by the people

During Community of Practice conversations, a facilitator is present to guide and support the conversation. The facilitator helps the group discover and create new connections, insights and knowledge.
